Hancock Central High School preparing scholars for a constantly changing world: socially, physically, and academically.

Teachers lead the effort to increase achievement

Summer School for Teachers

- For two days during the summer, the faculty and leadership of HCHS attended professional development workshops designed to assist them in preparing students to meet the challenges of state assessments. The presentations centered around such topics as engaging lessons, differentiation, and collaborative planning. These workshops are a part of an ongoing effort to ramp up the rigor in the classroom, challenging students to achieve at high levels.

Math 180 reboot

The Flexible Learning Plan at Hancock Central High School has been revamped and will now be offered as a class during the regular instructional day. This program is designed to provide additional support to students in need of that extra assistance in mathematics. Math teacher Mary Magluilo will now teach three periods of math support, utilizing the innovative Math 180 program which combines technology with direct instruction to provide learners with the individualized support they need.

Math Tips for Parents:

- ❖ Encourage your student to rely less on a calculator.
- ❖ Remind your child to study their notes each night even if they don't have any homework that night.
